

You do cool research so let's show it off and inspire others!

Communicating your science to others is super rewarding but also a little daunting; here are some ideas for you to consider:

KAROO ORIGINS

The Fossil Centre

Temporary display

Karoo origins has a dedicated temporary exhibition space that includes a display case, a wall for posters, and a monitor for videos or slideshows

KAROO ORIGINS

The Fossil Centre

3D print some of your CT segmentation, photogrammetry, or surface scans and display it with some information boards explaining your research!

Temporary display

Contact Viktor Radermacher if you'd like to brainstorm this a little further:
viktor@fossilcentre.co.za

Going back to your roots

Participate in your high school or primary school career day and share the journey of how you ended up choosing your current career path. Furthermore, you can design palaeontological posters that can be put up in classrooms and 3D print some of your segmentations that can be used as part of teaching aids.

Going back to your roots

GENUS would be more than happy to donate merch that you can give away during the career day. Reach out to totandi.scott-turner@wits.ac.za for more information.

